

Go4Orienteering 'simulation training' is the name of a concept of exercises working on several aspects of orienteering. The development of these exercises took a lot of time. Nevertheless, the set is available for a giveaway price for interested sports clubs, youth movements, schools, universities, etc. The price is low to promote the sport of orienteering and the cost is just a little contribution for the continuous development of the set.

The set of exercises protected by the law on copyright ©. The files on the USB stick are not protected against copying. This gives you as a user as much freedom as possible. You can use the exercises freely within your club or school, etc. On the other hand, you have to engage yourself for not giving away the set to other interested persons but to direct them to "Go4orienteeing" (association without lucrative purpose). In any case you will engage yourself not to commercialize the exercises or protect them in anyway.

As accepted user of the 'simulation training' exercises, you have the right to receive free help for extra exercises. For all your specific wishes you can contact "Go4Orienteering". This can be for modified versions of existing series or for complete new series. The aim is always the same, making extra exercises and distributing them for free to all accepted users of the "Go4Orienteering" 'simulation training' exercises set.

I engage myself to respect the above agreements:
